The month has been an unusually quiet one, consider-ing the season of the year and the first month of the whaling fleet of the "Fifties." Yet we cannot but see the greater benefit to the country in our more even agricultural growth throughout the year compared with the spasmodic activity of a few months each fall. Much as these Islands depended upon and profited by the visits of the whaling fleet in what we are pleased to term the or the whating need have been customs handed down or crept in to our systems of labor that the planting interests are now feeling the injurious effects of, principally the "advance wages" evil. We say cell, because for want of wise forethought and united action, among our planters and graziers at a time when it could have been brought under control, it has now grown to a monster

SATURDAY PRESS. OCTOBER 30, 1880.

It is rather a good joke to find the Expres talking of its neighbors having ceased the use of "personalities and invendoes," and of these constituting a chief feature in each issue of

What has become of the Genuine Treason man? Are the "Rebels and Traitors" all condemned and executed, or do they yet walk about the city without being afraid of even the manka side of Merchant street? or is it that the makers and vendors of personalities and inuendoes have been "caught, killed and cracked," as Sydney Smith said all vermin should be?

THE rumor of His Majesty's projected foreign tour still attracts attention and seems to be favorably viewed by all parties. No doubt the King has suffered a good deal of worry and anxiety of late, and if half the stories we hear be true. His Majesty's nerves have been severely shaken and he needs rest and change of scene. We hope, however, that the journey, if it be decided on, may be arranged and carried out with a due regard to economy, always keeping in mind the state and dignity of a Monarch. In looking over the various appropriations made by the late Legislative Assembly, we see that the sum total of the tems devoted more or less directly to the comfort and convenience of the King and the Royal household, bear a proportion to the whole wealth of the nation which would startle and amaze the tax-payers in any of the old debtbearing countries.

We fail to see that any good can be accomplished by the persistent efforts of the Express to white-wash Moreno. It matters little to us what Moreno is or was in Ohio. We all know what he was and what he did here, and that he is more spending Hawaiian public money. An Italian employed by a Chinese Company, he came here to further the interests of that company, not without a keen look out for his own. So far so good. But now comes the mischief. By some interest or influence unknown and unintelligible to us, this man was thrust into the Cabinet, when he was a constituency. The Representatives of the three great powers, jointly and severally refused to hold communication with such a Foreign Minister. Instantly a set of charges or accusations, false for the most part, and frivolous as to the whole, were drawn up and transmitted at once to their respective Seats of Government, demanding the recall of the three Representatives, without those gentlement knowing what was going on. However, circumstances concerning Moreno were made known and his resignation necessitated and yet strange to say, this man thus acknowledged to be wholly unfit for place and position is put in possession of a large sum of pubic money, and a trunk-full of documents capable of getting Hawaii into difficulties with half the great nations on the earth, and sent off with a sort of roving commission. The result is a suspension of diplomatic relations with the Three Powers, pending the receipt by their consuls of further instructions,

This is the Moreno of whom we know, and know too much. The Express says, to the Hawaiians only, that Moreno not only dines but travels about with General Garfield. This may or may not be true, but what does it prove on either supposition? In old Monarchical England they say "a cat may look at a King," and any two men may travel by the same train; how much more in the Republican United States, especially on the eve of a Presidential election. As to the note from Chas. Foster it is evidently written in abover to the question, "do you remember meeting me at Washington some few years ago." The answer is affirmative and little more. Suppose that every one in possession of one of the innumerable autograph notes and post cards which Mr. Gladstone scatters about so lavishly, or every one who had ahaken hands with him at Hawarden, were to refer to either fact as a proof that the great statesman thereby guaranteed the character, social, moral or political of the questioner ! Why then Mr. Gladstone would have as large a family of god-children as even General Garfield, or Governor Foster!

THE crucial question at present is, so doubt that of labor. It is said that there are near 1,000 Chinese on the way hither, but if it be so they will not suffice for our needs. It may be remembered that of the number brought by the Ho Chung not one shipped on a white man's plantation, but were all taken up by their own countrymen engaged in rice or sugar growing. The price of labor is such as to almost swamp any concern unless with a large amount of available capital behind it, and there seems to be no sign of wages being reduced. It is true that some old-established plantations having survived earlier difficulties yield a handsome dividend even at the pres ent price of labor, but it is very uphill work for a new plantation struggling into existence. The Chinese are so clannish, keep themselves so isolated, and seem to be in some sort of trades-mios of a very rigid nature that they contrive to keep up the price of labor at a really preposterous figure. Then again as to domestic service, one can obtain a half-trained youth who will condescend to learn his work at the hands of his mistress, in consideration of the receipt of wages at the rate equivalent to those of a London butler, and even then he border of the Nunanu stream near the foot of the "Hawiiin Bell Telephone Company."

THE new Musical Hall, at the junction of King and Merchant streets and nearly opposite the New Palace, is rapidly approaching completion, the roof, a very strong and well braced one, having been covered in this week. The building throughout will be admirably fitted for the purposes to which it is to be devoted-public meetings, balls, concerts, lectures, and theatrical representations. It is 120 by 60 feet on the ground plan, with brick walls 40 feet high, 3 feet thick at the base, running to 16 inches, and I foot at the eaves. The auditorium will be divided into Dress Circle, floor, and a Gallery above, the whole capable of easily seating an audience of over 600 persons. All the latest improvements as to ventilation and accommodation both for players and audience have been adopted. We learn that the house will be ready for occupancy early in December. By the return of the Australia, a company of professionals is expected. led by Mr. and Mrs. Wells, who it will be remembered made a very favorable impression on our community last summer. Mr. Charles Schultz, a popular orchestra leader in Califormia for the past ten or twelve years, is also expected. Great credit is due to the building committee, Messrs. S. G. Wilder, A. S. Cleghorn and A. McWayne, for the energetic and thorough manner in which they have planned and executed the work.

HON. S. G. WILDER took his departure for San Francisco and the East on the steamer last Monday, on business connected with the projected railway on the Island of Hawaii. A charter was granted on the 5th of July last to B. P. Adams, Henry May and Wm. C. Wilder and their associates, for the term of fifty years, as a corporation for the purpose of constructing and maintaining "a railway or railways from a point in the district of Kohala on the Island of Hawaii near or approximating to Hart's Mill, to Mahukona, and from thence ong or near to the sea-coast to Kawaihae, or to some intermediate port [this will probably be Keawanui] and from thence through Waimes and Hamakua to Laupahoehoe, with branches from Honokaa to Kukuihaele and other places." The capital stock is fixed at $1,000,000, two thousand shares at $500 each, with power to increase to $2,000,000. There are a number of large gulches or ravines in Kohala, and for five or these trestle work will be required. The proper surveys have been made for the entire route, including the distance from Kawaihae to Hamakua. The probabilities are that within a reaction of each and cannot them; in actual practice this is usually one in ten seconds. [Communicated.] The "Telephone Exchange" System.

Experience of various telephone-exchanges n large cities throughout the world, although limited, has developed the fact, that as the cently an old lady, the widow, long surviving, number of subscribers increases, the number of of a gentleman who had for his godfathers two communications increases in at least ten fold

Thus, if with one hundred subscribers there are five communications a day apiece, then with five hundred subscribers there will be ten To make the necessary connections and disconnections at a central office, quickly, reliably stood together at the baptismal font, assuming and with uniformity, without confusion, ha

Various plans of making, and varieties apparatus have been devised, tried, found United States. The Duke of Kent, the father wanting, and abandoned, and now all large of Her Majesty Queen Victoria, was present at Exchanges are using a third and fourth sysone of "Lady" Washington's New Year's re- tem, and yet irregularity and confusion are frequent. This is chiefly owing to the fact that all these systems absolutely require so large a staff of operators. Time, however, is the all important consideration, and it is evident that the best system is that which will occupy the least time.

The systems referred to above, are all essen tially alike, though differing more or less in detail. They may be called the "One Wire System,' which works as follows: One subscriber wishing to communicate with another. signals to the central office by dropping an indicator or ringing a bell. The office connects him by telephone, and asks the name of the person with whom he wishes to communison wanted and connects the two together. This would seem simple enough, but when a press of business arises, confusion is the probable result. But the system invented by Mr. F. Shaw, engineer of the "Law Telephone Company," of New York, and worked by that company, known as the "Two Wire System." requires the least possible time for making connections and accordingly is superior to all others. It may be described thus: Each subscriber is connected with the central office by two wires, the first, is the usual wire. or may be called the private wire, and which may, if preferred, have more than one subscriber in circuit, the second is the "calling wire," and has from 50 to 100 subscribers in circuit. The private wires are used exclusively between the subscriber, and the calling wires exclusively for calling the central office to connect or disconnect the private wires. At the central office a transmitting and a receiving telephone are connected permaiently with each calling wire, and an operator is seated with the receiver constantly at his ear, and a transmitter close in

All subscribers are numbered and names are not used. If any subscriber, say 231, wishes to com unicate with, say 547, he puts the receiver to his ear, presses a push-button, which thereby connects him with the calling wire, and says in his transmitter, 231 -547. The operator in the central office instantly repeats, 231 -547, which is heard at the same time by the caller, who fren releases his push-button, and by the swich board operators, who then ring the bells of both numbers, and connect them together. When he (231) has finished first section of the road, from Niulii (Hart's his communication he presses again his push-Mill) to Mahukona, in Kohala, a distance of button and siys discounced 231, or 517 may

By this system it may be noticed that in the central office the only words spoken were 231 and 547, and, deconnect one or other. Other will be from 30 inches to 3 feet, with rails systems need nore talking, and of course the more there is, the greater risk of confusion.

robabilities are that within a year from now times as many sessages may be sent in a giv-ne planters of the rich district of Kohala will en time as could be accomplished under any other system, and not only more quickly but more systematically.
